

Morning

The rosy fingers of dawn embrace me,
Twirling around my fingers laced around a warm coffee.
A cloud of frost leaves my sleepy lips,
As I clamor into my trusty silver—grey Camry.
The crisp morning air breathes hope of a new day,
A welcome mat ushering me into a world of possibilities.